

September 1, 2006

KING OF SWAG

September 1, 2006 -- LARRY King may be on a "news" channel that has strict anti-swag rules, but he still can't help himself. The stoic CNN host followed his wife, Shawn, into Vivian Turner and Mark Kearney's Iced Out Emmy Suite last week mumbling, "I want to go home," as she picked up everything from Stuart Weitzman shoes to Charlie Lapson handbags and David Kahn jeans. Then, at the last swag stop, Tie Evolution, which makes hats out of antique neckties, King's eyes lit up at some vintage ties that were part of the display. Helping himself to a few of the ties under a stunned rep's nose, King muttered, "I like these ties! I'm going to wear them on my show," and walked off.