BOTTOMS BY DONNA KÖREN; BRACELET BY CHARLIE LAPSON JEWELS

our exes can thank you for introducing them to ramen and tears; Torrie Wilson owes an ex-boyfriend gratitude for introducing her to pro wrestling — and with it superstardom. One week after visiting backstage with her turnbuckle-mad ex, she was working the ring for a rival organization. Two years later, she signed with the WWE.

"On my first day, I had to seduce Vince McMahon in front of his wife," says the 31-year-old former fitness model. "We started kissing, then I went to pull his pants down. I thought, 'Where would this happen, other than the WWE?'"

As well as improving the lives of fans as a Diva on WWE RAW, taking to the ring has also helped Torrie grow.

"In high school, I was a goody two-shoes," says the Boise, ID, native. "Now I'm much more comfortable with my body. I wear skimpy lingerie and bikinis on TV. I've definitely opened up."

Thank you, WWE.

What's your signature move?

It's "The Facial." When my opponent is in the corner, I pull my shorts up in the ring and rub my butt in her face. I'm just waiting for someone to give me a surprise tongue up the butt one day. Guys have asked, "So, when do we get 'The Stink Face?'" People like to call it "The Stink Face," but I prefer "The Facial." It's more girly.

Have you invented any new moves?

I take my dog Chloe to the ring these days and put her butt in people's faces. No one has ever tried that before. I call it "The Chloe Tush Push." It's hard to look tough when you have a four-pound dog's ass right there in your face.

How does a guy make you submit?

It depends on my mood. A little rough isn't bad. If I want to be loved, and the guy's not focused on himself, that's hot.

And when you say rough...

I don't like chairs, but a little rough is never bad. I like having my hair pulled in the bedroom. In the ring, not so much. I don't know what I like about it. I just do.

What about bedroom tag-teaming?

No way. I'm a one-on-one girl.

Chair over the head?

If that's what you want, I'll give it to you.

What's better: wrestling in front of a huge crowd or good sex?

They're both great, but you have to take good sex. Is there a way to combine both? I don't want to have sex in the ring, but maybe I'll get to have sex underneath the ring while the whole crowd is there. That would be awesome. FHM

Catch Torrie Monday nights on WWE RAW at 9 p.m. on the USA Network and live at SummerSlam on August 20 at Boston's TD Banknorth Garden. See behind-the-scenes action from the shoot at FHM.com/06

FHM.COM SEPTEMBER 2006

After that, she ended up marrying my father in the ring—in their underwear. They stuffed my dad in his tights-whities. My three brothers called me after the show to ask, "What the hell are you doing to Dad?" I was like, "Are you kidding? He wanted to do it."

What happens when fans see you in public with a character you're supposed to hate?

I wrestled Candice at WrestleMania this year. When we'd pull up to a restaurant around that time, I'd be like, "Ooick, clothesline me!" As soon as I'd get out of the car, I'd yell, "I hate you, Candice, you bitch!" If we have a few drinks in us, we really get into it, and it's even more fun.
